May Use Bombs To Clear Ice at Fort McMurray

With continuing severe weather for northern war projects, valued at more than $1,000,000 facing destruction in the advent of a flood, use of aerial bombs to be dropped from the military plane for breaking ice jams at the confluence of the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers at Fort McMurray, was under consideration Friday. It was not decided.

Chief of Army men and contractors engaged in northern projects was that formation of huge ice jams in the Athabasca, just west of Fort McMurray, in the Clearwater, would cause the Clearwater to "back up" and flood the flats at Waterways and the river would be cut off.

There are considerable new rail facilities at Waterways and warehouses filled with supplies and materials.

A short neck of low water, called the Snye, connecting the two rivers, would be cut off and the Clearwater also likely to flood in case of serious ice jams. The Snye is used as a base for winter supply planes.

Reporters reaching Edmonton early Friday were that the ice on the Athabasca was well honeycombed, a sign that it would not indicate a break-up will not be ready in usually heavy ice jams.

MAY DROP BOMBS

Plans have been sought of Ottawa some time ago to drop bombs from military planes in case the threatened jams of ice occur.

The Snye is unsafe for sky-equipped planes. CP Air Lines officials “Every year at this time we move back buildings and equipment that are not required, and the winter danger of a flood is greatest since the last serious flood back in 1938. The amount of damage of dams was done to the equipment and equipment at Fort McMurray and Waterways,” an Air Lines official stated.

JAM AT WHITECOURT

An ice jam on the Athabasca river at Whitecourt created a serious situation there Thursday night, when the McLeod threatened to inundate the town as a result of the ice blockade.

The McLeod joins the Athabasca system at Whitecourt, and when the ice jammed at the junction of the two rivers, the McLeod threatened to overflow and damage which was extremely low at that point.

Residents of the town were told to move to higher ground, and the police ordered all to leave, as it was considered unsafe to stay while the ice jam held back the rising water.

The situation is back to normal again this morning, as the ice jam cleared during the night.

Great Aerial Activity Over Dover Strait

LONDON, April 16.—(UPI)—A great force of four-engined Allied bombers flew high over a general combat zone yesterday.

Two hours earlier, the British and Spanish recently had again predicted some Axis-inspired peace would be made through negotiations.

Three of the six supply and transport ships in the convoy were wrecked in three straight attacks from dusk to mid-night last night and new relays of bombers took over the assault early this morning, according to the British.

Deny Rumors New War Bonds Not Saleable

HAMILTON, Ont., April 16.—(CP)—O. W. Spivier, chairman of the national war finance committee, deflated a rumor he claimed was being spread concerning Canada's impending fourth Victory Loan and said that, "in time of war as 'a curse' in an address prepared for delivery here last night at a loan rally."

"The outstanding rumor in this campaign," he said, "is that the three new war bonds due from previous issues cannot be turned into cash until the official redemption date. Nothing could be further from the truth."

Mr. Spivier said the government has the option of paying off the whole issue before maturity.

Mr. Spivier said he had observed with some "curiosity and interest" that whenever a loan was issued it was "a curse" of a malicious type increased intensity."

He pointed out that there could not be a plainer case showing that this curse arises sharply profit and slumps after the operation is over.

He said that the only real probability of enemy origin for similar stories has been set afire in the past.

Mr. Spivier said the success of Canada's fourth Victory Loan is of more vital significance to the war program and the future of Canada than any previous financial undertaking by the nation's history.

DOES NOT AGREE

The loan opening April 26 with a minimum objective of $170,000,000 has the double duty of providing for the war and preventing inflation. Mr. Spivier said.

With spending power high and available credit going up, the constant pressure on Canada's "perfect setup" for inflation unless action was taken to avoid it.

Mr. Spivier said it is necessary that this loan and subsequent loans must, to a greater extent, be used to finance this excess spending power and divert it to the war program "he said."

"That is why every effort is being made to avoid, as far as possible, financing the war needs through the use of securities and banks, for, beyond certain limits, this is inflationary finance . . ."

Deny Cigarettes Sent to Troops Not Delivered

OTTAWA, April 16.—(CP)—Postmaster General Frank said in the House of Commons yesterday some "thoughtless and uninformed individuals have been spreading the rumour that Canadians in the army postal service through statements about cigarettes not being sent."

In a lengthy statement, Mr. Mulock gave figures showing 214,097 parcels of cigarettes and tobacco were sent to Canada in 1942, and of this number 61,889 were lost as a result of enemy action, or 28 per cent of the total of cigarettes and tobacco sent in the year numbered 3,581, and of these post office was able to return 2,047 for a 34.7 per cent loss.

LOSSES SMALL

The postmaster-general was followed by Defence Minister Ralston, who made a short statement.

Mr. Ralston, who is in Britain, was able to freight a train of the post office. He explained an order restricting the cigarettes received by Canadian troops in the United Kingdom to 1,000 a month and said the losses had been small in proportion to the total sent overseas in this way.

PLANE CRASHES

VANCOUVER, April 16.—(CP)—An RCAF plane crashed near Ladysmith, 12 miles south of Vancouver yesterday, resulting in the death of the lone occupant. Next day it was learned that the name will be issued shortly.

THE FIGHTER PLANE

The new fighter plane, the Thunderbolt, is believed by experts here to be the answer to the German Focke-Wulf 190 at any altitude.

Ames, fighter pilot, the crack Thunderbolt—may alter the whole picture of aerial warfare in this theatre, experts believe.

The Thunderbolts, which are technically designated as P-47's are also to accompany United States Flying Corps and their aerobatics all the way to targets in Germany and back again.

The new fighter, which can escort planes that have sufficient range to make such long flights in this theatre, will be able to give light bombers protection through their journey.

The Germans had attempted to take advantage of this by making their attacks on the Focke-Wulfs at points beyond the range of anti-aircraft as well as the heaviest

"Soldier" Shows

Edmonton's rank as a military centre is recognized in the fact that it is one of five cities across Canada where theatres are to present shows on Sunday afternoons for the entertainment of men and women in uniform without charge. The other cities are Toronto, Halifax, Victoria and Prince Rupert. The arrangement was made by the Department of Defence, because of the large numbers in the services at these centres who are away from home and derive special social advantages of the old home town.

It would have been better had this provision been arranged early in the winter, as the cold season is naturally that in which time hangs heaviest on those living in strange surroundings, the theatres tending to be welcome, and the theatres packed, there is no doubt. Civilians will of course remember that the shows are presented for men and women in the uniform of the fighting forces exclusively. That the public will be thoroughly enjoyed, and a means of preventing loneliness, is to be hoped. —V.

A Job to Be Done

On Friday of last week Edmonton had the unusual experience for the time of year of an all day rain. There was general rejoicing among the townsfolk at the thought that the pavements were getting a thorough washing off and there would be a riddance of mud and dust. But the rejoicing was premature, for the weather came & went—and the air was filled with powdery dust that made life miserable for those who had to use the down town streets and work in offices and stores in the central area.

The dust was bad. There is no use hating it to the gentle rain from heaven and the still gentler moistenings of the water carts to clear the dirt off the pavements. These need to be scrubbed with the sweepers or scraped. There is an accumulation in places and a thick made up of mud derived from water, the sand and cinders sprinkled on the icy roadways during the winter. Time and pressure have cemented this unholy mixture to the pavement, and traffic grinds the surface of it to a powder each time passing by. The only way to clean these dirty streets is to clean them, and that will take something more than an occasional wetting down by the water carts and an unusual April shower. —V.

Isolating Benito

Stuttgart, besides being an important centre of war industry, is a key point on transportation lines over which troops and munitions pass from western Germany to Italy. The blow landed there by R.A.F. bombers had the dual purpose of demolishing plants and facilities, and of isolating the engineers made of having the fortification of Italy and the forwarding of supplies to the Axis forces in Tunisia. As the raid was a "saturation" one, it may be hoped good results were obtained in both respects. That this raid followed so closely on the attack on Spain indicates that the specific aim was to further isolate the Fascist partner.

Italy is assuming the position of a larger Tunisia, subject to attack from three directions, and liable to send assault troops from the front. In like manner, it is to be used by Hitler as the scene of a delaying campaign intended to hold back the Allies from Germany. The Mussolini ambitions for Italian expansion were never so far as by his masterful colleague Benito was on the point of being used by Adolf. He is now becoming a costly asset, and it is only as an outpost of the Reich that Nazi help is being given him to strengthen Italy against attack. The raid on Stuttgart was at the top of the outport that at the Reich itself.

The Dominion Steps in

If engineers could squeeze the oil out of Alberta's tar sands as easily as some after the first world war, the Dominion have been doing it for years. Canada could now be exporting gasoline instead of importing it. But they can't. They have been trying for many years, have found out how to get the oil, but apparently not how to get it to a refinery. No one could produce. Wherefore the Dominion Government, taking over the Abasand plant, and has set aside $500,000 with which to continue the experimenting while continuing production on the present method.

The new oil, of course, will be awaited with great interest throughout the West, and with particularly keen interest in this part of Alberta. Success will mean the creation of McMurray of an industry of indefinitely large proportions, a new source of employment, supplies of oil for harboring facing streets and highways. While success cannot be counted as certain, the Government has taken a hand in the enterprise only after a thorough survey of the deposit by competent engineers. There are also the favourable circumstance that the natural material recovered in the operations will be useful in surfacing the Alaska highway, thus ensuring some return for the outlay in addition to the oil obtained.

For twenty-five years or more the tar sands have been confidently regarded as a source for unlimited quantities of both oil and gasoline material. When the Government has stepped into the picture it may be assumed that the experimentation and development will be pushed with more energy than private investors could be induced to do, and that with reasonable time the actual value of the huge deposits will be known and turned to practical account. —V.

Dr. Goebbel's were to take a look at what the Germans were doing to Essen—and then went on the air to the German people to keep up their courage. What has been evidently impressed him: What was said evidently impressed him. —V.

Last Wednesday the Japanese lost 30 of 98 planes attacking Allied ships off Guadalcanal; Sunday they lost 24 out of 45 which raided Oro Bay in New Guinea; and on Monday they lost 37 out of 100 sent to bomb Port Moresby. In these actions they lost 100 planes out of 240, or 41 per cent. As far as the losses run to more than 10 per cent of the attacking planes. What is happening to Japan's reserves of machines and pilots is unknown. —V.

Signor Mussolini has one less cruiser than he had last week, and another one so badly crippled it will not be of much use in the war of attrition. Another absurdity in our treatment of militarily exempt minors is the use of barefoot children. They are now being educated to 10 years each and eight gun ships, and had plenty of the skill that Italian warships need. They were mauled Saturday by a flight of U.S. bombers. This will confirm the Mussolini school that the Italian warships are not badly in the event of an evacuation flight—and barring Sicily and Sardinia the ships are about all he has left beyond the Italian shoreline. —V.

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell has made the welcome announcement that conscientious objectors will be removed from camps and put to work on farms. Another absurdity in our treatment of militarily exempt minors is the barefoot children. They were never any reason why a Conscientious objector from fighting should also be excused from doing whatever kind of useful work was required to meet the non-military needs of the nation. There is no more absurdity in the idea of sending a boy to be rewarded for being a scamp by allowing him to live the life of Riley at the expense of the public. He, too, should be taken out of the internment camp and put at useful work—under guard if necessary.

Looking Backward

From the Bulletin Files

1893: 50 Years Ago

The lands department has provided two large tents at the railway station for the use of immigrants. If two cotton tents exhaust the resources of the immigrants, the department will supply lumber to be had which could be secured and made up into temporary shanties. This may look like a barefaced attempt to outwit our enterprising minister of the interior, but this is the time when a little extra economy is the true economy.

From 30 to 50 per cent of the cattle on the range about Medicine Hat are said to have perished in the cold weather of January and February.

The Argentinian and Chilean settlers are to come to Manitoba during the summer. They will settle near Lake Winnipeg.

Detroit has 18,000 Canadian-born inhabitants.

The C.P.R. is reported to have leased the Lethbridge plant, and the Macleod plant, and engaged at once. The C.P.R. is also said to have plans for building from Lethbridge to Macleod, and to the south of the Rockies in the Kootenay district.

Men, Women Allowed to Remain at Non-Essential Work

Employment BENTLEY

(The fourth of a series)

OTTAWA—Hitherto the positive side of manpower policy has been reviewed. The record shows that grave mistakes were made.

The negative side is equally disquieting. The failure of the govern-

The record shows that the Ministry of Labour has been slow to learn the

The comparison between De-

Camrose Troops Entertained by Kiwanis Party

At the invitation of Lt. Col. P. J. Fleming, commanding the Basic Training Centre at Camrose, the Edmonton Kiwanis Club, which during the winter travelled to Camrose Wednesday evening, as strong, and as popular as ever, paid a visit to the troops stationed at Camrose, and their friends.

Some seventeen hundred people who had been invited, had a chance to give the Glee Club a very warm reception, and showed their appreciation of the Kiwanis efforts in their three days' continuous Response and applause.

Acting Adjutant, Lt. Macdonald, who had given the troops a week of command for a wonderful stage erected under his inspection, was the guest of honour. This stage which is used solely for the entertainment of troops is completely built and maintained and constructed through the efforts of the troops stationed at Camrose. All the members of the Glee Club showed their appreciation of Lt. Macdonald's efforts in this connection as such a stage lends itself very well to the entertainment which visit Camrose from time to time.

CONTRIBUTING ARTISTS

Some of those who accompanied the glee club to Camrose and gave freely of their time and talent were: Mrs. G. L. McLean, Mrs. the four dancing girls (Mary MacPherson, Doris Holland, Minnie Doss, and Dorothy) and Piper Bob Macpherson; Jack Strachan and Alex Cameron, Jack Toulson and the two young Clerical Errors, Lin Jordan, Ferguson Evans and Phil Knowles; Hamilton, as a ragged vagabond; William Sudd, Ldr. Sudd, an outstanding reception with his rendering of "Old County Town"; and the two young girls who are also indicated to Cecil Camrose and his Macdonald hotel orchestra. They gave a most excellent service towards this worthy cause. Cecil and his orchestra were received with a standing ovation, audience, and were in great demand at all times. Betty Sims was the soloist.

The glee club was under the direction of their leader Ed. McGinn. In addition to the usual formalities, musical arrangements were all especially arranged by G. S. Stratton. Business arrangements were left to the direction of Del Mould.

The Edmonton public will have the opportunity of witnessing how very popular a show which has proven so popular with all the members of the glee club, the Strand Theatre, Sunday evening, May 2, when the glee club will be joined by the band of the Navy Mother's Club. They will also appear at the 4th Annual Train Show at the Centre on May 3, when they will be the guests of the boys of the R.C.A.F.

Hostel For Women Is Planned Here

At the war service council meeting on Tuesday evening Jack Wright, president of the council, met with George Terence Barren Point and Prince Rupert, where the Legionsmen had on 20th day of March, in their new day. A letter was read from Capt. D. L. Macdonald, auxiliary services officer, who expressed the thanks of pressing the gratitude of all concerned for the very high class entertainment given.

Mr. Wright also gave a comprehensive review of military events in the north, and the progress of the line of the proposed summer programs.

The report of M. C. McCannell, treasurer, was considered very satisfactory.

The war services council of which Frank Pike is chairman, issued an invitation to all groups doing war work to a meeting to be held at the Legion hall with a view to affiliation.

Men, Women Over 40 Feel Weak, Worn, Old? Want Normal Pep, Vim, Vitality?

For the first time ever, the Canadian National Railways train crew is responsible for saving the lives of possibly 20 million passengers and their families who are in Edmonton after visiting Whitecourt.

Mr. Mairier tells of the heroic train crew which worked in knee-deep water, Wednesday, during a flood at Whitecourt. The crew carried the disabled children, the safety of a train coach on higher ground.

Disallowance Act Is Subject Of Conjecture

Disallowance of the Land Bill may create divided opinion in southern Alberta, it was learned Friday. Feeling, reflected has been expressed that the bill, if passed, would give the power to land to Hitlerites and enemy aliens, and before the act was passed, the government, under pressure, had urged the passage of the act.

The Land Bill, introduced by the Ottawa cabinet yesterday, forbids sale of land to Hitlerites and enemy aliens, and forbids the purchase of land. An amendment passed at the recent session of the legislature, however, gives the power to Hitlerites and enemy aliens.

The act reportedly was allowed because the dominion government believed Hitlerites and enemy aliens are the sole prerogative of Ottawa, and the provinces have no power to legislate in connection with the act.

This gives rise to a question as to the minds of observers as to whether the dominion government, had the term "enemy aliens" not been included. Some quarters believe the act is directed solely against Hitlerites, and the dominion government would have offered no intervention.

Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, questioned Thursday morning whether the bill, as it stands, will not affect the Chinese and the Greeks.

When asked if he could not do more to help, Mr. Tanner added, "and it's now up to the dominion government."

WITH the announcement that the Highlands course would be open for the season next Sunday, golf would appear to be making its official debut for the year under more optimistic auspices than was anticipated by all excepting probably those who have been following the golf news.

Just how many Americans intend to become active golfers in the various city clubs will of course not be known for some time. However there is no doubt but that the number is quite considerable and several have all the necessary arrangements for accommodation.

The list of addicts of the ancient game in Edmonton is a considerable one and a host of experts expect a busy season.

All five city clubs will be open this year. Edmonton Golf and Country Club announced the other day that the opening would be carried on as usual and Mayfair, Prince Rupert and Municipal also expect to open as soon as possible.

In fact several city golfers have already done a little pre-season tuning-up.

ADEQUATE SUPPLY OF BALLS

ONE of the most令人惊讶的是, for those confronting golfers for some time, in view of the current rubber situation, has been that of the golf ball.

However, several of the city stores are expecting to have a reasonable supply available in addition the clubs are understood to have a limited supply for use of their own members.

Local golfers are given a captain out at the Highlands is authority for the statement that the ball question should not cause any undue worry this year. He stated that most golf clubs had taken precautions during the winter to have their own supply of balls, reconditioned, and that these would be entirely satisfactory for play.

"Lucky" Hines, also recalled that in addition to generally every golfer has his own private supply which he has been very carefully nursing along during the winter.

TORONTO, April 16—(CP)—After watching Oshawa Generals from the stands, Dick Wakefield of Detroit Tigers, who two years ago he achieved considerable fame by auctioning his services as a baseball team leader, has joined the Tigers finally signed him for approximately $50,000.

From the University of Michigan, Wakefield, 21, was a Piping Rock League farm at Winston-Salem in 1931 and last year was promoted to the Tigers' farm at Toledo, where he proceeded to win the baseball championship with a 32-12 record.

He was to be the leader of the Tigers' farm, but the result was unusual in the south.

The best known newcomer, perhaps, is Dick Wakefield of Detroit Tigers, who two years ago he achieved considerable fame by auctioning his services as a baseball team leader.

Donnie, middleweight champion from South Dakota, galloped across American sports pages with a blinding spattering of ink in May 1933, when he pinned Col. E. R. Bradley, 100, in the historic "rough riding" contest.

The early, broad-shouldered from Detroit, Bradie, 100, and the world's most valuable player.

There is no question that he can hold his own in the ring, but the minds of Detroit fans fact that Hank Greenberg, Charley Gehringer and Barney McClosky have joined the Tigers for the armed forces.

There is a question, though, as to whether he can hold his own in the ring, but the world's best fighters are the ones who have the most experience.

Before the curtain rises, the newcomer appears to be inferior.

Eddie Stanky of Chicago Cubs, who was an outstandingly valuable player in the American Association last year at Milwaukee.

He also led in runs scored with 124 and in two-base hits with 56.

Round and about:

Bob Cosgrave, Montana who became one of Canada's outstanding boxers, has joined the

Calgary Broncs, Toronto Argos and Toronto Balmy Beach, heads

Vancouver baseball players went overboard for Warren Martin, first year to play in the college who is playing in the Vancouver Senior Amateur League.

Montreal attended the Notre Dame college at Wilcox, Sask., and not the only notable institution of Krewe Rock fame. It was shock but the writers don't blame Martin who plays a lot of first base.

Legion Elects 16 Delegates for Provincial Convention

Meeting Plans to Stress Necessity for Legislation On Welfare of Servicemen

For what promises to be one of the most eventful provincial conventions in history, members of Edmonton branches of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., at the regular monthly meeting Thursday, elected 16 delegates to represent the branches at the annual convention of the Provincial Command that will be held in Edmonton on June 6, 7, 8, 9.

The following were named to represent this city's Legionaries in battle:

President, H. F. Tanner; J. McLean, P. Cowley; Vice-President, W. Williams; G. Scott; J. H. Van Poelje; G. Griffling; G. L. MacNamee; P. Bowes; W. T. Rice; W. Irwin; D. Hawkins; W. Daniels; A. Riddell and Mrs. G. Jackson.

Erica Jackson, as a delegate at a previous Legion affairs here. It is the first time in history that a woman has been chosen as a delegate to a provincial convention. Mrs. Jackson has been chosen for several years in a fashion of women's auxiliaries of service units. Her nomination was loudly cheered.

Alternative delegates, from Lethbridge, were Dr. J. G. McLean, C. S. Thompson, L. Smith and L. A. Davies.

A letter from Provincial Commandant, G. Scott, to all provincial branches, stressed the importance of the convention, which will emphasize necessary legislation to improve the welfare of servicemen and women serving in both this war and the last.

It is believed that the successful rehabilitation of war veterans in the post-war years will also be discussed, particularly by the delegates.

W. McLean, read a letter from the Dominion executive council of the Canadian Legion setting out the recent recommendations of the Dominion command recently placed before Defense Minister Peckover, and from the Canadian Legion in a friend in the Rossdale area, Gus Williams exchanging greetings with a friend near the corner of 101 Street and 101 Avenue, Alida Tennant entering the elevator in the C.P.R. building.

Air Crash Victims Brought to City

The bodies of a Canadian Pacific Air Lines pilot and two survivors, killed Monday when their plane crashed near Provost, were arrived in Edmonton last night by air from the northern crash scene and were taken to Howard and McBride's funeral service.

Official bodies of the three, Pilot, Earl Platt of Rimley, Alta.; Alida, Robert J. Moore of Edmonton, and W. Williams of 12 Hecla block and formerly of Grimshaw, Alta., probably would be sent to their home towns for burial.

All three were found dead in the wreckage of the plane that had been separated from the air a day after the crash. Cause of the mishap was not known.

Following the recent fire which destroyed the long distance service over the Canadian Pacific Telephone system normal service has been practically restored. J. D. Baker, deputy minister of telephones for the provincial government has announced.

Germany has been considered a stronghold of the sciences for many years. And it is true that many great discoveries in chemistry and medicine have been made in Germany. At that not a few of those outstanding in German research were Jewish. And the scientists of Great Britain and the United States have made great progress in their respective fields. Not to much is heard of the strong, silent British. But what is being done? A recent pamphlet, issued by the British Ministry of Supply, gives a few reminders along these lines.

Radio-location, the war's most closely guarded secret, is undoubtedly greater progress made by the British now than ever before.

It revolutionized the air defence of Britain and her Allies and in its infancy at the time, played a great part in the victory of Britain.

British scientists quickly vanquished Hitler's much-vaunted secret weapon, the "people's bomb" and the enemy's most science have taken nearly all the sting out of the enemy's land mines.

Erica Jackson as a delegate at a previous Legion meeting in Edmonton affairs here. It is the first time in history that a woman has been chosen as a delegate to a provincial convention.

Mrs. Isa Grindlay Jackson of 10809 100 Avenue occupies a unique position among Canadian women today. As a member of Edmonton Branch No. 24 of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., she became Thursday the first member of her sex to be elected a delegate to the provincial convention.

BY JACK DOLONG

It is believed that she is the first woman to be elected a delegate to an important convention of the organization. She has been a member of the Edmonton Legion branch for two years.

Born in St. Thomas, Scotland, she came to Canada in 1919 and lived in Calgary. There she was married to Charles Grindlay, well known Calgary lawyer, who died in the Battle of the Somme in 1916.

Since after the outbreak of the First Great War she returned to Scotland, where she was among the first women to volunteer for service in the British Army. She was a member of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps, popularly known as the Wacs.

She was a St. Andrews girl and served as cashier in an officer's mess and as secretary to the Commanding Officer. DISAPPOINTED

Earlier this year, she left France, the last received orders to move to the western front, only to be stricken with influenza. When she recovered from her illness the armistice had been signed. She then learned that she would have been transferred to the Canadian Army and she telephoned to Ottawa, where she was still eligible to go to France after the armistice, she had no longing to return to Scotland, and the decision remained in Scotland, until demobilized.

After the war she married L. J. Jackson, a veteran of the First Great War, and now company quartermaster sergeant with the R.C.A.F. For 22 years she lived near Lethbridge in the Whitecourt district northwestern of Edmonton. One

The survey was undertaken to determine the working conditions and wages paid so that the knowledge would be available to the committee of the Royal Commission on civil service for wage increases and better working conditions. —V.

Victory Loan Will Achieve Its Objective

Confidence that the Fourth Victory Loan objective would be easily attained was expressed by H. D. Burns, Toronto, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, who arrived here Friday from an inspection tour of western Canada.

He is accompanied by F. W. Ross, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and general manager of branches in western Canada. They are guests at the Macdonald Hotel. They will stop over here Saturday morning, when they will proceed to Calgary, and later will travel to the Pacific coast. Friday, they conferred with D. McCallum, manager of the bank's Edmonton branch.

Commenting on Edmonton's future, Mr. Burns stated that with the present natural resources being developed and the present wealth of the undeveloped resources of the province Edmonton cannot fail to be a great city.

NO STRANGER HERE

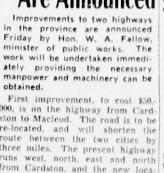

Mr. Burns is no stranger to Western Canada although this is his first visit since his appointment as general manager of the bank two years ago.

In 1938 he became the bank's secretary at Vancouver.

He said he was making this trip through the west to gain first hand knowledge of the development achieved during the past year, and also to view some of the tremendous wartime development that has taken place. —V.

Improvements Alberta Roads Are Announced

Improvements in two highways in the province are announced Friday by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works. The work will be started immediately, providing the necessary manpower and machinery can be obtained.

First improvement, to cost $9,000, is on the highway from Cardston to Macleod. The road is to be doubled in width and the distance between the two cities by three miles. The present highway from Cardston and the new north will cut off three sides of a loop through the Hondo Indian reserve.

The present highway has to be repaired each year, which will be cheaper to build the new route than to put the old one in good shape.

Second improvement is the Edmonton-Lloydminster highway, where a four-lane shortening of the road will be made by connecting Stony Creek and Minburn. It is to be cut two miles off the present route, and the two last railroad crossings between Edmonton and Lloydminster.

The new road will parallel the railway between Stony Creek and Minburn, without crossing it. The road will be double and paved.

It is recalled that the road was first put through, there were many difficulties, particularly the railway right-of-way between Edmonton and Lloydminster. The road was built in 1936, costing $15,000, and this year the improvement will cost $15,000, making the total shortening up to 17 miles. —V.

MAYOR FRY HEADS FOR Ottawa Parley

No information has been received by the City Commissioners from Mayor John W. Fry as to the result of his negotiations with War Minister H. L. Broadbent.

Mayor Fry has completed his work with the Royal Canadian Legion and has left for Ottawa presumably to submit the report of the Royal Canadian Legion to the government.

Hon. C. D. Howe, the minister of supply, has arranged to meet Mayor Fry at the Ottawa station on April 19.

The need for houses in Edmonton has been the subject of a recent letter from the Royal Canadian Legion to the government.

Mayor Fry and Ald. A. Bissell went to Toronto 10 days ago to discuss the matter with the Royal Canadian Legion.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Masterly, Meddling Virtue Most Difficult

Regulating Others' Lives an Inexplicable Trait Which Results in Few Shining Examples of Successful Lives

One of the most difficult of all, instead of a never-well who could never make a living.

That the virtue of others and the grace each other any personal liberty is first aid to diverse is a matter of common knowledge.

It is a virtue that we are willing to do everything else in the world for those we love except to let them alone. We will slave for them, sacrifice for them, give them our last penny, but we will not deny our own personal freedom trying to hold them. We want them to be happy and prosperous, but they are not happy and prosperous in our way, or else we are bitter, hurt and disappointed.

Our insistence on regulating the conduct of others is an inexplicable because few of us have made such shining examples of success of our own affairs that it seems natural to do the same for others. But personal achievement seems to have no bearing on the subject. There isn't a person in the country who can tell the Secretary of the Treasury exactly how to run the finances of the country, or the women who isn't hurt when her daughters refuse to let her pick out their clothes for them.

CAUSES TROUBLE

This means that we have an interest in the affairs of others at the bottom of most of our troubles, yet, curiously enough, we do not seem to be able to catastrophe happens to us such as losing a friend, or our marriage going to pieces, or our children showing no interest in school, we get away from us at the earliest possible moment, we do not even realize that it is because we did not keep our meddling hands off of them.

The people who complain that they are not happy and have no friends never even suspect that it is because they made their friendship a tyranny. The minute they begin to complain, they begin with others they began dictating to them about how they should conduct their business, and treat their business, and what they should do, they should know, and what they should have for dinner, and one would think.

When Mother sees that Alice is drifting into old maidhood and that Mary is a bitter, disgruntled spinster, she doesn't understand how it happened when they were such pretty, attractive, light-hearted girls. She never thinks that it is because, for it, or thinks that if she hadn't kept Alice from marrying the poor boy she was much in love with, Alice would have had much more money, she might have been a happy wife, riding in her own limousine, and so on. She has to go to work every day. And that if she hadn't urged Mary into marrying a man she didn't like, Mary would have been a good catch, she would not be vanning herself to death with boredom.

FATHER'S INFLUENCE

Now does it occur to Father that the reason he is not happy is because he tried to make him a lawyer when Nature had made him a merchant? He doesn't even let the boy follow his own inclinations he might have been an inventor, and certainly he would have been a contented, independent man hearing.

DARK JUNGLES

By JOHN C. FLEMING AND LOIS EBY

THE STORY: Allison, a young, slender girl, is off to Guatemala. On board she meets Barry, a tall, dark, good-looking man, and bound for Guatemala Barry remains in his stateroom, reading books and writing in his diary. Allison, a Quiche Indian. When playfully Allison seems to be in love with Barry, he is annoyed and says he is apportioned.

ATTACK

CHAPTER III

WHEN the new moon was high in the black star-gleaming sky they rode in the small, rocking tender back to the freighter. The two Brazilians and the light house keeper joined in a semi-melancholy with Allison humming an obligation.

Then they were off. The freighter. One of the rubber men bounded Barry on the back with a roar. The next time I want to see a Quiche about I'll just let them know," he laughed rambunctiously.

"I'll do that," said Barry.

The three men drifted off with their cabin, leaving Allison with Harry—the prize she had worked so hard to get. When she had gone, she lost some of her gay sang-froid. She dug a hand from the deck and took off her shirt to wear for cigarettes. And lit it. Then she glanced up at his lean brown face and dark, steady eyes. She sighed. My sigh and blear a smoking ring.

"I think you make the best contacts!"

the Guatemalan highlands live the Quiche Indians, Catch?"

"Catch," laughed the girl. She frowned. "But why the history lesson? Now you get so chummy with them just to work a few mines?"

"There's the rubs," admitted Harry. "I'm in it on a quid pro quo basis. The Indians bring their crushed and vaporized cinnabar and we give them bananas and trade it for bananas and fishing rights. But where they get it is a tribal secret."

"I'm surprised," said Allison. "I was going to ask you about that."

"You mean—am I giving up my 'single dream'?" she murmured blandly. "Going back to New York with the remnants of a few words of warning that you gave me the night I sailed? No."

He said, "I think you're better off. I'm telling you a Guatemalan chieftain is plotting an assemblage like this even a complete and balanced plan."

The teasing laughter in her voice was plain now. "Maybe," she said with a smile, "I'm spending a little time describing the horrors of the jungle to me on the trip down, and less time with your old Quiche Indians."

"I'm almost as much as Guatemala. I can't decide whether it's because I'm so good at it or because I'm so bad at it."

"The voice on a wild goose chase itself," she said triumphantly.

"I'm not so sure." He thumped nervous fingers on the rail. "In all this boming up on their traditions, I think I've got an argument to use with them. I think you know what I mean. Integrity. You can't help them. That's their strength. But I'm not so sure."

"And we should help them?"

"Because the allies are fighting for the same thing they're struggling for."

"Because their blood brothers in these respects. I'm going to try to make them see that, too. I'm not so sure."

"The voice," Allison mused on imperturbably, "you fascinate me because you're so aloof and mysterious. You can be so intent on histories of the Quiche Indians? If you were an archeologist, or a professor, or a scientist. But you're a mining engineer?"

"I'll tell me?" Allison said breathlessly. "I promise you I'll consider going home."

"I'll give you a new note of seriousness in your voice. He told her his business was with the Indians."

"My company sent me down here because the United Nations war effort is in vital need of quick, reliable transportation for the delicate instruments of warfare. The Guatemalan highlands are one of the all too few sources. And on the railroads, you're talking strong stuff."

Harry laughed regretfully, now he'd told her so much and been so eloquent about it. He said lightly to cover his previous outburst, of course, "I'm not so sure."

The other fellows kept offering them more money. That didn't work.

"Brother, you're talking strong stuff."

"The voice," Allison said breathlessly, "I promise you I'll consider going home."

"I'll give you a new note of seriousness in your voice. He told her his business was with the Indians."

"The second," he said.

"The second one didn't come."

She stared at him a full minute, horror deepening in her eyes. "But then— you're in danger," she cried. "You're in danger, and I must help you. All of us should be strong."

He laughed shortly. "Nonsense," he snapped. "The second man was probably bitten by a snake. Or delayed somewhere. You see, I think I'm going to keep the big house with you in this country. Now get in there and pack, and I'll take you back to the mainland."

"The first," she said, "was the rail, her voice-colored hair blushing back from the white pinup outfit of her late, her eyes dark blue.

"I can't," she said. There was a tangle of laughter and headshaking. "I can't. I can't. I can't know why. Maybe it's the jungle— maybe it's you. But I'm going on."

Barry recognized decision. With a final, impulsive burst of impatience he turned and strode off.

"Wait a minute!" she whispered, and ran after him. "Wait a minute!" he called, turning back to her. The forebattle 10 feet behind him in time to see the dark, naked figure of a native dash through the jungle, shouting the war-hail! Her scream rang through the dark night a second too late. The native held her— the grim, silent figure in his upturned hand.

greatest airplane motor in the world.

In explosives Britain's famed two and four-ton blockbusters far surpassing the Axis do as yet produce.

In medicine Britain has produced the famous sulphapyridine drug, which has saved thousands of lives since the start of the war.

The British were forced to put all their people at strain to ration the British food scientist had to make the marvels in the science of nutrition.

The latest discovery is a remarkable new food, rich in vitamins, calcium and protein. It supplies full nutrition and can be cheaply manufactured from tropical plants. It is expected to play a big part in averting the threatened famine after the war sweeps over Europe with such menace.

Science, of course, is universal, and in a sense the only truly international factor in the modern world. That is why science and extreme nationalism, with theories of racial purity and the like, could never survive in a world in which science was prevalent. The results of scientific institutions and fears of imaginary things are exalted for worship, can such nonsense prevail?

When scientists shape the political policies of a nation instead of the scientists, the serenity of the political we will finally have sanity and peace.

British scientists will be in the lead.

"The second," he said.

"The second one didn't come."

She stared at him a full minute, horror deepening in her eyes. "But then— you're in danger," she cried. "You're in danger, and I must help you. All of us should be strong."

He laughed shortly. "Nonsense," he snapped. "The second man was probably bitten by a snake. Or delayed somewhere. You see, I think I'm going to keep the big house with you in this country. Now get in there and pack, and I'll take you back to the mainland."

"The first," she said, "was the rail, her voice-colored hair blushing back from the white pinup outfit of her late, her eyes dark blue.

"I can't," she said. There was a tangle of laughter and headshaking. "I can't. I can't. I can't know why. Maybe it's the jungle— maybe it's you. But I'm going on."

Barry recognized decision. With a final, impulsive burst of impatience he turned and strode off.

"Wait a minute!" she whispered, and ran after him. "Wait a minute!" he called, turning back to her. The forebattle 10 feet behind him in time to see the dark, naked figure of a native dash through the jungle, shouting the war-hail! Her scream rang through the dark night a second too late. The native held her— the grim, silent figure in his upturned hand.

THE STORY: Allison, a young, slender girl, is off to Guatemala. On board she meets Barry, a tall, dark, good-looking man, and bound for Guatemala Barry remains in his stateroom, reading books and writing in his diary. Allison, a Quiche Indian. When playfully Allison seems to be in love with Barry, he is annoyed and says he is apportioned.

He said, "I think you're better off. I'm telling you a Guatemalan chieftain is plotting an assemblage like this even a complete and balanced plan."

The teasing laughter in her voice was plain now. "Maybe," she said with a smile, "I'm spending a little time describing the horrors of the jungle to me on the trip down, and less time with your old Quiche Indians."

"I'm almost as much as Guatemala. I can't decide whether it's because I'm so good at it or because I'm so bad at it."

"The voice," Allison mused on imperturbably, "you fascinate me because you're so aloof and mysterious. You can be so intent on histories of the Quiche Indians? If you were an archeologist, or a professor, or a scientist. But you're a mining engineer?"

"I'll tell me?" Allison said breathlessly. "I promise you I'll consider going home."

"I'll give you a new note of seriousness in your voice. He told her his business was with the Indians."

"The second," he said.
